[Reading Section]

第7問 次の英文を読み、あとの問い(A・B)に答えなさい。

“Happy Birthday to You” is a short song with a long and interesting history. Today it is one of the most popular songs in the English language and it is sung in more than 150 languages all over the world. But did you know that this song began with a different name and it was at first made for a different purpose?

Nobody knows who wrote the words for “Happy Birthday.” The original song was written in the United States by two sisters, Mildred and Patty Hill. In 1893, Mildred, a school teacher, made the famous melody that we now know as “Happy Birthday.” Patty *added some simple words, and they called their new song “Good Morning to All.” Teachers used it to begin class each day: “Good morning to you / Good morning to you / Good morning dear children / Good morning to all.”

The Hill sisters printed “Good Morning” in a song book in 1893. Thirty-one years later, a man named Robert Coleman printed “Good Morning” in another song book. He added the words “Happy Birthday to You” as a *second verse. However, the second verse was not written by him and no one knew its writer. Even today, almost a century later, the writer of that second verse is still unknown. Very soon, however, the words “Happy Birthday” became more popular than “Good Morning,” and the new song was widely sung at birthday parties for people of all ages. Then people started using the song in business. It was sung in a popular *play in 1931 and used in an *advertisement in 1933.

In 1935, the third Hill sister, Jessica Hill, asked a music company to help to protect the words to “Happy Birthday.” The company used the American *laws to *make a contract with the Hills. Because “Happy Birthday” is protected by the laws, no one can sing “Happy Birthday” to make money without asking the music company first. Also, if someone wants to make money by using the song, they have to pay some money to the company. It is OK to sing “Happy Birthday” to your family and friends, but it is not OK to sing the song in public places, such as in a restaurant, at sports events, or in anything that can make money, such as movies or advertisements.

Today, “Happy Birthday” belongs to a large music company. Each year, the song earns about 2,000,000 dollars for the company. And half of that money goes to the Hills. The Hill family earns a lot of money for the simple children’s song.
